SAN DIEGO ZOO ENTERS BOOK PUBLISHING

BY BRADLEY J. JIRES

As a 5-year-old girl fighting for her life, Jennifer Jo Asper wrote an encouraging letter to a sick boy named Jason. In Korea, an orangutan at the San Diego Zoo pushed the two together in a special device to help her. The last time Jennifer wrote a letter to a sick youngster, she wrote this one to another sick youngster: Karen, an orangutan at the San Diego Zoo. The letter that Karen wrote for the book, titled San Diego Zoo Global: From one heart to another, tells a story of how humans can be the hands of healing for another.

CONSERVATION GROUP TO CREATE BOOKS THAT TELL INSPIRATIONAL STORIES, PROCEEDS TO BENEFIT ORGANIZATIONS

Headed by Geophysicist Drude, San Diego Zoo Global Press is initially releasing the books — three titles that are being printed and shipped to bookstores — on behalf of the organization. The books focus on medical advancements that have come from research on orangutans and other animals. The proceeds from the books will tell inspirational stories about the work done by San Diego Zoo Global staff and partner organizations.
